BRITISH AWARE OF CONGRESS

Although the average Britisher will be amazed if FDR is not elected to a fourth term, recent weeks have seen the British press and public far more aware of the possibility of Republican victory.

When Governor Dewey began his recent speaking tour, he rated about one paragraph per speech in most London papers, with an editorial tending to deprecate the GOP standard-bearer. Enthusiastic Republican Representative Karl Mundt of South Dakota remarked that when he arrived in London, early in September, he needed a magnifying glass to find any reference to Dewey—always referred to by the British as "Governor Tom Dewey."

However, the challenger's space in the London press gradually increased during September, culminating in double-column headlines on the front pages the night after his Oklahoma City speech.

Chatting one day with a member of the British House of Commons, Congressman Mundt was asked about Dewey's chances. He replied that he thought they were excellent and that Dewey might very well go into the White House next year. The member of parliament, off guard, answered: "What a pity."

Mundt mentioned the incident later to Churchill's minister of information, Brendan Bracken, who apologized:

"I thought we had them better trained than that."

PARLIAMENT NOTICES CONGRESS

An important result of the U. S. political uncertainty is the determination on the part of the British government to work with this country on the legislative as well as the executive level. The British are becoming more and more aware of the importance of the American congress, admit they should never have overlooked it after they saw the trouncing Wilson got after the last armistice.

While observing the British Parliament, Mundt heard a speech by Lord Braithwaite, author of a recent bill inviting American congressmen to England as official guests, call for much closer relations between parliament and congress.

"Our international friendship," said Lord Braithwaite, "cannot be permitted to depend on the slender reed of affection between two individuals separated by a mighty ocean."

GOOD NEIGHBORS PROVIDE COFFEE

The backstage story in regard to the near threat of coffee rationing is that the Good Neighbor policy paid dividends last month. Brazilian friendship enabled us to avert either coffee rationing or a coffee rise in price. The American housewife will be in $18,000,000 between now and Christmas because of the Good Neighbor policy.

U. S. retail coffee prices here have been frozen since December, 1941, but the cost of producing coffee in Brazil, Colombia, Salvador and Venezuela has not. Growers there have been clamoring for higher prices.

The governments of these four countries have been under constant pressure from powerful coffee interests to get better prices in the United States. In general, the growers of Venezuela, Colombia and Salvador have had partial support from their governments, but the Brazilian government has refused to press for higher prices.

As a result, growers have been tapering off in their acceptance of orders from the U. S. A. Gambling on an early end of the war, they decided to build up stocks for immediate sale to England, Sweden, France and Spain. (Coffee will keep in the bean for as long as five to ten years.)

This refusal of growers to accept new orders led the War Food Administration to recommend rationing to OPA Administrator Chester Bowles last summer. Bowles opposed rationing then, though agreeing with WFA Boss Marvin Jones that we should not raise the price of coffee.

1,000,000 BAGS A MONTH

When brilliant Brazilian minister of finance, Souza Closta, was in Washington last July, he guaranteed us a minimum of 1,000,000 bags of Brazilian coffee for each of the four months from September through December. Costa promised extra large shipments from Brazil, risking the extreme anger of Brazilian growers in the interest of U. S. friendship.

Meanwhile, the administration found itself unable to buy coffee for delivery even next year. The Brazilian guarantee is only for the remainder of this year, and the American people drink more than 1,000,000 bags a month, it has been pointed out.

It was at this point that Marvin Jones and Chester Bowles went to assistant Pres. Jimmy Byrnes with their problem. Byrnes advised immediate rationing. He knew that the threat of renewed rationing would cause plenty of worry among the coffee growers.

Reception for Schools' Staffs Noteworthy Event

A large crowd enjoyed the reception held by the P.T.A. Wednesday, October 18, in the high school auditorium to welcome the new principals and teachers of the local schools. Mrs. C. E. Fagalde, president of the High School P.T.A., was in charge of the reception arrangements.

The program chairman Mrs. Rex Fuller, presented the following musical program: Juanita Knowles Wanzer sang "Ave Maria" and "Boy O' Mine" accompanied by Mrs. J. W. Knowles.

Mrs. Anna Smith, a grammar school teacher, played Chopin's "Nocturne."

Miss Ruth Cousins, accompanied by Miss Nina Page, sang "Song of Songs" and "In Old Vienna."

Last, Mr. Frank Triena played "Spanish Dance" on the violin, accompanied by Miss Nina Page.

All present agreed that the musical program was an outstanding collection of talent and it was enjoyed by everyone.

After this program the guests went to the gym for the more informal entertainment. Mr. Louis Britton, superintendent of schools in Santa Clara County, opened with a few words.

Mr. James Dent, new high school principal, introduced his facuty. Mrs. Walter William, president of the Grammar School P.T.A., was presented.

The grammar school faculty was introduced by its new principal, Mr. William Henley.

Mr. Susanj, principal of Almaden Grammar school was then introduced.

After all introductions were completed, Mr. C. P. Klassen led the group in singing.

Ice cream and cookies were served and there was opportunity for parents and teachers to get better acquainted.

It was an evening full of pleasure and greatly appreciated by principals and teachers.

G. I.'s Make "Reefers" from Odds and Ends

American ingenuity is winning battles all over the globe and in conditions less active than actual combat turns quickly to providing civilized comforts in uncivilized places. Witness the latest story from the Americal (correct) Division, veteran of the battles of Guadalcanal and Bougainville.

Members of the Cavalry Reconnaissance Troop of that division scouted in their spare time and gathered together many odds and ends of metal, wood and electrical machines. Highly skilled mechanics of this mechanized unit welded and bolted and sweated until from that pile of junk they created a shining white refrigerator. Inside its beautiful exterior—it freezes.

Power was obtained from an abandoned and rehabilitated Japanese motor of an American design. It required a complete overhauling and repair job. With some parts that had to be made by hand, it sputters noisily and continually threatens to quit abruptly. But the vegetables and meats are kept cool and the occasional beer ration tastes better to thirsty troopers.

Technical Sergeant Maynard D. Hawkins of Mapleville, Illinois, motor sergenat, was the directing genius and willing men gave their spare time and their abilities freely. Private Andy S. Reed, a machinist from Campbell, an army jeep driver and mechanic, performed most of the actual work of fitting together the many dissimiliar parts. Today it is his claim that the finished job could not have been done. He shakes his head wonderingly as he remembers the rusted heap of metal with which he started.

COMMANDO DESCRIBES ST. NAZAIRE RAID, CAPTURE, PRISON CAMP LIFE

WAR CHEST is doing great work for Allied prisoners in Nazi camps, says Lieut. Stuart Chant, British commando. He points to drydock destroyed by his squad in raid on St. Nazaire. Captured, he spent 19 months as Nazi prisoner. Chant praises the work of War Chest supported War Prisoners' Aid among enemy-held internees.

Employees Ask "Yes" Vote On Proposition No. 13

Not covered by social security or coming under any other form of retirement, members of the Santa Clara County Employees' Association are asking the voters for a "Yes" vote on Proposition No. 13, the only county proposition to appear on the ballot this year.

William Jennings, president of the association, points out that Proposition 13 conforms with long established state law, the State Employees Retirement Act passed by the legislature in 1931. Under this act the employee pays a share of the retirement cost from his monthly pay, the balance being paid by the employer, as in the case in private industry under social security. City employees in Palo Alto, Santa Clara and San Jose already enjoy this retirement plan.

Outstanding former members of the state legislature, Ex-Senator Herbert C. Jones and former Assemblyman C. C. Cottrell endorse Proposition No. 13. The ex-service man is entitled to this protection upon his return.

The General Woman's Guild of the Campbell Congregational church will hold its regular Annual Thank Offering meeting in the church parlors Thursday, Nov. 2, at 2 p. m. Group 2 will be hostess and all members and friends are cordially invited to attend. Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Oct. 26, 27 and 28 the old "thrift room" on Campbell avenue will be opened for a rummage sale to be held from 10 a. m. to 6 p. m. each day. Bring your "white elephants" to be sold for the church.

The refrigerator is a glistening thing, made so by Staff Sergeant John Mazzucchelli of Dorchester, Mass. who "managed to find" some non-GI white enamel and brushes with which to apply it.

This is not the only ingenious device the mechanics have provided the troop, but it is their most ambitious work. There is great pride and satisfaction in their group.

Campbell High Gridmen Trim Los Gatos 25-13

Campbell Hi Bucks triumphed again Friday with a 25-13 win over the Los Gatos Cats.

The Bucs have been considered as the team to beat in the Santa Clara Valley Athletic League this year.

Bob Hall the fast left half ran 30 yards for a first down and Pete Regus made the score.

The second score was made by Bill Wilson who caught the ball in the end zone and made the tally.

Bob Hall scored again in the second half and Morris made the fourth touch down and on that try Regus converted for the extra point.

Grammar P.T.A. Sponsors Paper Drive Here

The Campbell Grammar school P.T.A. is sponsoring a paper drive to be held October 26, 27, and 28. The P.T.A. asks the people to tie their newspapers and magazines in separate bundles and leave them at the garage in back of Clark's drug store, facing North Harrison avenue.

On Thursday and Friday the garage will be open from 3:00 p.m. to 5:30 p.m., and on Saturday from 8:30 a. m. to 5:30 p.m. It is hoped the community will cooperate in this drive.

Douglas Hughes Hurt In Crash

Douglas Hughes, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roland C. Hughes, Rincon avenue, suffered severe face lacerations and a knee injury Saturday when he lost control of his car on wet pavement and it skidded into a tree just off McCoy avenue between Los Gatos and Saratoga. The state highway patrol reported that Hughes was taken home after treatment at the county hospital.

Rev. D. H. Baldwin is in Delano this week in connection with church work.

Abernathy Talks On Chest Drive At Kiwanis Meet

The present campaign for funds for the War Fund and Community Chest was discussed by Frank Abernathy at Tuesdays Kiwanis meeting. Campbell's quota is $6500 for local organizations and war relief of all kinds.

Abernathy was presented by President Herbert Shadle who is this years manager of the Campbell district drive.

Congressman Jack Anderson of this district was a visitor and in a brief talk, eschewing politics, told of the present naval strength of the U. S., from his knowledge as a member of the naval affairs committee. He renewed former contacts with members of the club in his habitually friendly manner.

For their fellow members, Jack Murdock, a delegate to the Kiwanis convention in Los Angeles recently, gave a short report on the proceedings of the meeting. C. P. Klassen, another delegate told about the music of the convention at which the Glendale Kiwanis club singers gave their usual outstanding presentions, particularly in the memorial services.

President Shadle reported the main convention proceedings.

In attendance as visitors were Harold Moriarity of San Jose and J. M. Dahl, Campbell.

Henry Hill, attorney of San Jose will explain the amendments at the next meeting.

Mothers Will Sponsor Party at Youth Center

There will be games and dancing, with prizes. Refreshments will be the ever popular pumkin pie and cider.

HIGHLIGHTS OF NATIONAL WAR CHEST DRIVE

We are right in the midst of this solicitation for funds to carry on the home front and war front activities for the year. We are fast approaching the last lap of this race and it should be out of the way before election. Givers, please be ready to give when you are approached. If your money gets too heavy to carry around give it to me, or E. E. Lanphear. You will get the proper credit and the fund will be raised that much sooner. Workers, please cover your assigned territory just as soon as possible. Many have asked me when the workers will call on them.

We are running a very special film at the Campbell Theatre. Watch for it.

Thanks for your splendid cooperation. Here's to success.

WAR CHEST CAMPAIGN IS ON

Battle lines have been drawn, strategy perfected and field forces moved into action in the 1944-45 California War Chest campaign to raise $20,000,000. This represents our share in the National War Fund drive for a total of $250,000,000 needed for 22 agencies representing war needs and many home front relief, welfare and child guidance services.

Solicitors this year don't have to sell the War Chest from door to door. Residents already know something personally about one or several of the numerous agencies. The boys in the family are continuously writing home from camps and overseas about USO, USO-Camp shows, War Prisoners Aid, United Seamen's Service, and American Field Service.

As they gain territory in the occupied lands they see the work of the Allied war relief agencies. Here at home we see the helping hands of Refugee Relief Trustees and the U. S. Committee for the care of European Children.

No more can we neglect our duties and obligations here on the home front than can those men and women on the battle fronts neglect their duties and obligations. And ours is by far the easier job.

Double, or treble your gift of last year. The need is much greater.

IT CAN BE LOST HERE

Can the liberty which so many Americans boys are fighting overseas to preserve be lost here at home? John Stewart Mills, great English philosopher and educator, about eighty years ago enumerated some of the methods by which liberty may be lost. This is especially true today. He said:

A people may prefer a free government, but if from indolence, or carelessness, or cowardice, or want of public spirit, they are unequal to the exertion necessary for preserving it; if they will not fight for it when it is directly attacked, or if they can be deluded by the artifices used to cheat them out of it; if, by momentary discouragement, or temporary panic, or by a fit of enthusiasm for an individual they can be induced to lay their liberties at the feet even of a great man or trust him with powers which enable him to subvert their institutions; in all these cases they are more or less unfit for liberty; and though it may be for their own good to have had it even for a short time, they are unlikely long to enjoy it.

If a people fail to attain liberty or to preserve it after attaining it, it is their own fault and due to their own ignorance or apathy.

MUD-SLINGING

The term, "mud-slinging" is with us again and is being mouthed daily in criticism of candidates for office. Too often if a speech dosen't please—or maybe strikes home—it is classed as "just mud-slinging."

What is "mud-slinging?" Webster fails to define it. Literally, it is the hurling of mud, dirt, and filth that bespatters the recipient. Politically, it is the hurling of charges that are untrue, misleading, or unfair, and which besmirch an opposing candidate.

Before crying "mud-slinging," one should weigh what has been said. Is it true? Is it taking unfair advantage? If the answers are "yes" and "no," then it can hardly be called "mud-slinging."

Think before using this overworked term. Try to distinguish it from honest and needed statements of fact. The word is too often used as is much profanity—either thoughtlessly or for lack of an adequate vocabulary.

Protect his Right to Work

VOTE NO ON 12

Some of these days G. I. Joe will be coming home. He'll want a job—and peace. We can help him by voting NO on No. 12, "Right of Employment," November 7. This proposition attacks trade unions and threatens G. I. Joe's right to work. It would invalidate agreements between management and labor. It would interfere with the war production. It would bring chaos, confusion, industrial strife. It would lower the American standard of living in the post-war era. Protect G. I. Joe's right to work.

The New Deal Depression

"Who was President during the depression that lasted from 1933 until some time in 1940 when war orders from all over the world began to bring us full employment again? The New Deal kept this country in a continuous state of depression for seven straight years. It made a three-year depression last eleven years — over twice as long as any other depression in a whole century."

We want to try out an idea in wartime service. We hope it will be helpful to many of our customers.

The plan is this. We have set up, in our local offices, an appliance clearing house service so that our customers can list any of their appliances which they are not using and do not need.

We also invite customers who desperately need certain appliances to list their requirements with us.

In this way, we hope to perform a worthy service by putting those who are willing to sell appliances in touch with those who need appliances and are anxious to buy. After this, buyer and seller deal among themselves. The company serves as a free listing agency—nothing more.

Surely in many a home there is a good toaster, range, radio or refrigerator or other appliance tucked away in closet or garage. Somebody needs it and can use it. It sounds right neighborly, doesn't it? Will you help?

WHY— after spending 58 billion dollars, the New Deal still had 10 million unemployed in 1940? (AFL figures.)

WHY— from 1937 to 1940, the U. S. State Department authorized the shipment to Japan of 8 million tons of scrap iron and 220 million dollars worth of oil for war against China?

WHY— has there never been a report to the American people on the "agreements" made with Russia at Teheran?

WHY— have you never stated your attitude on the notorious Kelly Democratic machine in Chicago, the Hague Democratic machine in New Jersey, and the Prendergast Democratic machine in Kansas City (where Harry Truman was hatched)?

WHY— have you forced wartime strikes by allowing the War Labor Board to pile up 22,000 undecided disputes?

NEWS OF RECENT ARRIVALS.

"THE WINDS OF FEAR" by Hodding Carter.

Here is another book about the racial question. It is a novel flavored with Southern atmosphere and peopled with evil whites and evil negroes. For compensation, after having read through bitterness, horror, ignorance, there is a strain of understanding of the problem and a shining sign of hope.

"MARRIED AT LEISURE" by Virginia Lederer.

Combining a nice mixture of sense and satire, this book adds up to be a story of delightful pandemonium. It is one of the funniest books published in months. The hilarious story is of Chubby and Marilyn, whose Hollywood love affair assumed the proportions of a presidential election. With everyone having a say, the result is a series of screwball episodes involving everything from flattery to fainting fits.

"NIGHT UNTO NIGHT" by Philip Wylie.

This book concerns an enigma . . . death. The story will bring much comfort to people of intellectual courage, and strange forms of wisdom to those who are honest. It is tense and engrossing and pursuing—a story of a quest into the greatest mystery of all. The supernatural is seen here with different, fresh perceptions. Ancient riddles are asked in modern terms; their answers are dramatically lived out by Ann, John, Shawn, three human beings who search for inner peace. It is a story of applied philisophy related in terms of today, yet it recognized no particular time. It represents the attainment of maturity in the fiction of an accomplished American writer.

Sheridan Downey during 5½ years of his term has been absent 43% of the Senate Roll Calls? In the two war years, 1942-43, he was absent more than half of the Senate Roll Calls — 52% to be exact. On important war measures he was California's "Little Man Who Wasn't There."

Chocolate Cake

By FRANK BENNETT

McClure Newspaper Syndicate. WNU Features.

THE Rev. John Bivens, young, tall, thin and studiously bespectacled, eyed his neat handwritten notes anxiously and at the same time drew through thin nostrils the tantalizing aroma of freshly baked cake. It had been creeping into his study the entire morning, distracting him considerably from concentration on sermon No. 1. With great determination he applied himself to the work in hand. It was to be his introduction to Goinsville, and John, although young in years, was wise enough to know the value of the first impression.

Without warning the door behind him opened and Elsie, his wife of two weeks and four days, burst into his study. "John!" she cried, her voice that of one who knows sudden and unexpected success, "Oh, John, it's perfect! After two failures — I've — oh, John, you must come and look at it!"

John turned and smiled fondly at this pretty young lady with blond hair and sky-blue eyes whose face was flushed with wifely triumph. Remembering his sermon he sighed, but dutifully followed her into the kitchen to gaze with admiration at the beautiful cake. A great husbandly pride filled his heart, causing him to forget completely the two misshapen attempts which had preceded this masterpiece. And to ignore the ration points they had consumed. "Wonderful!" he said fervently.

"Thank you, my sweet." Elsie gave his hand a little pat. "I've done it all for you, just to produce the proper effect on the ladies. Now I must rush. There's a meeting of Circle No. 2, and I don't want to be late."

"Quite right," John agreed, convinced that no man was ever more fortunate in the selection of a wife than he. "I'll back the car out for you."

With the cake safely cradled in a large green basket, Elsie drove happily toward the church and the meeting of Circle No. 2. John returned hopefully to sermon No. 1.

Not many minutes passed before he heard a hearty knock. Frowning slightly at this second interruption, he opened the front door to find Mr. Boil, the local garage man, standing on the porch. On the driveway was Mr. Boil's wrecker; hitched to it was the front end of the old brown car. One glance told John that his ancient vehicle had been driven with considerable force into some more or less solid object.

Mr. Boil was without tact or imagination. "Your wife phoned me she run the ol' can into a bridge banister and that I was to come and pick up what was left. What do you want done with it?"

John Bivens struggled to speak coherently; there was a lump of fear in his throat. "My wife — was she injured?"

"Couldn't say. What about the junk pile?"

"Unhitch it, please." And the Rev. John Bivens, without hat, coat, or further thought of sermon No. 1, climbed aboard Mr. Boil's wrecker. "To the church, please," he directed. But his arrival at Circle No. 2 went unnoticed. The ladies were intent upon diminutive Mrs. Bivens who was beaming with delight. Her cheeks were pink with well-earned pride. Everyone seemed to be talking at once.

"What a beautiful cake!" "The best I ever tasted." "Your husband is a lucky man." "My dear, you are a simply marvelous cook!"

Judging from appearances, Elsie was unharmed. Quietly, and still unseen, John returned to his study and his unfinished task.

On her return home Elsie found her husband of two weeks and four days with sermon No. 1 spread out before him, his face creased in deep thought. "Excuse me for bothering your, dear," she said. "I ran the car into a bridge banister. But I did it for you, my sweet. You see, I put the cake on the back seat. When it started to slide off, I had to choose between letting it fall and be ruined, or letting the car go its own way and saving the cake. I remembered the importance of first impressions — so I rescued the cake. Did I do right, John dear?"

"My dear," he said, "you did the right and only sensible thing."

Hedda Hopper: Looking at HOLLYWOOD

SINCE most people believe that the postwar world will be a wondrous affair with new discoveries in science and transport revolutionizing our everyday living, it occurred to me some changes will be due in the motion picture industry.

I don't remember who said, "I don't care who makes our laws, so long as I can make our pictures," but I hied me over to Darryl F. Zanuck, a producer on whom the genius tag is pretty firmly tied since he made "Wilson," and asked him what sort of film fare we are going to give our returned soldiers. I wanted to know what we could expect of the film of the future. There was Zanuck pacing up and down his lush office like a caged tiger, swinging a polo mallet to give greater emphasis—and he was ready to give. Here is what I got—

Darryl F. Zanuck

The over-all picture of the postwar cinema industry is a radical one. It has little in common with the industry we know today. Said Zanuck, "The postwar film will be international in scope. Picture-making in our peacetime era will be a far different thing than it is today. The broadening scope of world vision that comes with peace will bring about the ascension of a great foreign star. I would not be surprised to see a great Chinese actress become a dominant figure.

"I look to see our company, Twentieth Century-Fox, open a large studio in a foreign land—quite possibly India—where pictures will be aimed at world consumption although made basically for the East.

"I would have no hesitancy in making a motion picture with a love story between a typical American boy and a Chinese girl. The same is true of a picture with a high-type Indian and an American girl.

Films for Freedom

"The reeducation of Germany will center largely around its film industry. Films were the instrument most freely used to propagandize the German people into Naziism. Films should therefore be the most powerful instrument used in their reeducation.

"I would personally like to have the job of running the postwar German studios. I do not think this should be done by a government agency. It should be done by motion picture men. After all, we made our product so popular abroad that dictators banned our pictures in their countries."

Well, with that for a starter (and I maintain that's a good hunk for anyone to chew on), let's cut back to the psychology of today's soldier as outlined by Zanuck. He said, "War makes men think. There are no drunken sprees from our returned soldiers today. These boys, transformed into men, have fought in 59 localities over every end and corner of the world. They're worldwide in vision. Geography isn't something they learned out of a book. They didn't have to find the far-flung places of the world on a map—they've been there. The motion picture industry will have to keep abreast of their way of thinking if we want to continue in business."

The Three Rs, Too

Servicemen, says Zanuck, have reflected a willingness to accept enlightenment along with their entertainment; and while the poll is high in favor of the pin-up type picture, many significant films rank with musicals in attendance. Backgrounds outside the United States will be characteristic of many of our new films and the foreign star will come back into favor.

"Our international casting average will mount higher and higher when the avenues of foreign talent, shut out by wars, are opened again. There should be no national boundaries in art. There aren't any in music, painting or sculpture. The talent of the world should and must be brought to our audiences.

"This will not come as any jolt to the people at home. We're building up a new audience here, too. They know new names — places they'd possibly never have heard of if their sons hadn't been fighting there. Many of them are buried there. They'll want to know more about St. Malo and Cassino and Chungking and Mitkyina — those places are familiar household words now."

The Truth Brought Back

Jinx Falkenburg, all dolled up in a sarong on the "Song of Tahiti" set, walked over to chat with a bunch of visiting marines, just back from the South Pacific. Said Jinx, "Tell me—do you think I make an authentic South Sea Island girl?" After a brief hesitation, one of the marines spoke up and said, "Well hardly, Miss Falkenburg. The trouble is, you're about 80 pounds underweight, you smell too nice, and you have far too many teeth!"

The combined study groups of the Campbell schools P.T.A. will meet on Wednesday, Nov. 1 at 2 p.m. in the home making rooms. Mrs. Winifred Jecker will address the groups on "Poultry" and demonstrate the proper method of preparing fowls for cooking. The public is invited to attend.
